DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. This action is responsive to an amendment filed on 02/12/2007. Claims 1-20 are pending.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed on 02/12/2007 Remarks regarding Solomon have been considered persuasive. Therefore, examiner has withdrawn the rejection in view of Kasiviswanathan and Solomon.

3. Applicant's arguments filed on 02/12/2007 Remarks regarding rejection in view of Kasiviswanathan and Mowery et al. have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Regarding claim 1, the Applicant argues on page 8 that "Mowery does not teach a database to determine both whether a central office switch supports a supplementary service and whether a user has access to a voicemail service". The examiner respectfully disagrees with this argument. The examiner didn't rely upon Mowery for the teaching of the limitation. Thus the rejection of the claim in view of Kasiviswanathan and Mowery remain.

Claims 11 and 16 are rejected for the same reasons as discussed above with respect to claim

- 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

6. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

7. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kasiviswanathan (US 6,215,857) in view of Mowery et al. (US 5,278,897).

Art Unit: 2614

As to Claims 1,6,11,14-17, with respect to Figures 1-3, Kasiviswanathan teaches a system for enabling a user to access to a voicemail service comprising:

a central office switch (Figure 2, label 210) in communication with a customer premises equipment (CPE) (Figure 2, label 200), the central office switch comprising:

a supplementary service processor, Figure 3, operative to receive a sequence of characters from the CPE, generate a query to a supplementary service database when the sequence of characters is a predetermined n-character messaging sequence, where  $n < 7$ , to determine whether the central office switch supports a supplementary service (Figure 3 and Col. 4, lines 40-60); and receive a call forwarding number from the supplementary service database if the central office supports the supplementary service and the user had access to the voicemail service (Figure 3 and Col. 4, lines 40-60);

wherein the central office switch is operative to connect the CPE with a voicemail service in response to receiving the call forwarding number (Figure 3).

However, Kasiviswanathan fails to teach to determine whether a user has access to a voicemail service based on a caller identifier. Mowery teaches determining whether a user has access to a voicemail service based on a caller identifier (col.4, lines 52-64, col.5, lines 64-68, col.6, lines 1-19). Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Kasiviswanathan to determine whether the user has access to the voicemail service using a caller identifier in order to determine an authorized caller to leave the message.

As to Claim 2, Kasiviswanathan teaches the system of Claim 1, wherein the central office switch is further operative to prevent access to the voicemail service in response to a determination that the user does not have access to the voicemail service (Figure 3).

As to Claim 3, Kasiviswanathan teaches the system of Claim 1, wherein the central office switch further comprises a router (Col. 4, lines 48-55).

As to Claims 4,18, Kasiviswanathan teaches the system of Claim 1, wherein the central office switch further comprises an error handler for sending an error message to the CPE in response to a determination that the user does not have access to the voicemail service (Figure 3).

As to Claims 5,12, Kasiviswanathan teaches the system of Claim 1, wherein the n-character messaging sequence includes a first '*' star character (Col. 4, lines 7-21).

As to Claims 7,8,13, Kasiviswanathan the system of Claim 6, wherein the 3-character messaging sequence includes a first '*' star character followed by a two number sequence (Col. 4, lines 7-21).

Art Unit: 2614

As to Claim 9, Kasiviswanathan teaches the system of Claim 1, wherein the supplementary service processor further comprises a routing table for storing a call forwarding number for a user that has access the voicemail service (Col. 4, lines 14-27).

As to Claim 10, Kasiviswanathan teaches the system of Claim 1, wherein the supplementary service database further comprises a redirecting identifier for connecting the user to an error message when the user is temporarily prevented from using the predetermined n-character messaging sequence to access the voicemail service (Figure 3).

As to Claim 19, Kasiviswanathan teaches the computer-readable storage medium of Claim 16, wherein generating a query to a supplementary service database comprises transmitting a DVMA caller identifier from the central office switch to the supplementary service database (Col. 4, lines 40-48).

As to Claim 20, Kasiviswanathan teaches the computer-readable storage medium of Claim 19, wherein receiving a call forwarding number if the central office supports the supplementary service and the user has access to the voicemail service further comprises verifying whether the user identified by the caller identifier subscribes to the voicemail service (Col. 4, lines 40-48).

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
